Secure rights to land—including the right to manage it and control the income from it—go beyond mere access. For a majority of women, access to land and property essential for food production and sustainable livelihoods is dependent on natal and marital affiliations. Thus, women can lose rights to land when there is a change in marital status due to marriage, divorce, or death of a spouse ...

Environmental and Gender Impacts of Land Tenure ...

Land tenure, due to its complex nature, causes many disputes and is strongly influenced by the settlement pattern (Ellen, 1978). When cash crops become dominant the status is generally changed and this seems to be the case in most areas. The traditional land tenure systems are also under pressure due to national legislation. Since 1960,

Land Tenure - an overview | ScienceDirect Topics

Jessica Chu seeks to enquire into the understanding of gender impacts with the new proliferation of cross-border, large-scale land transactions or global 'land grabs'. There has been a lack of discussion of gender in considering land grabs, most notably in the World Bank's recent report and in the various proposed guidelines. However, by not having addressed the current debates on women's ...
