New Directions has long published poet William Carlos Williams' entire body of short fiction as The Farmers' Daughters (1961). This new edition of The Collected Stories of William Carlos Williams contains all fifty-two stories combining the early collections The Knife of the Times (1932), Life Along the Passaic (1938) with the later collection Make Light of It (1950) and the great long ...

'Tennessee Williams: Collected Stories' (1985) is a highly readable if occasionally unpleasant volume by an author who, like the Scottish novelist Muriel Spark, is one of the uncelebrated masters of the short story form. Williams imbued many of his tales with overt sexual content, so that some of the material resembles the kind of softcore erotica that Anais Nin produced in the 1940s, and which was published after her death as 'Delta of Venus' (1977) and 'Little Birds' (1979).

It contains all the stories from Dylan Thomas: Portrait Of The Artist As A Young Dog and from Adventures in the Skin Trade as well as the miscellaneous prose pieces found in Quite Early One Morning. By turns turgid and lucid -- sometimes morbidly surreal, at another times sunnily nostalgic -- Dylan Thomas could cast a spell on his reader or listener from the very first sentence.

The stories in this volume, arranged chronologically, are from every period of his long life, and recreate the milieux Williams knew and chronicled so movingly -- from his gypsy youth in St. Louis and New Orleans to his days of celebrity in Hollywood and New York. Some are studies for his plays, and like them, their language can suddenly surprise you with a poetic image that shines like a jewel. This edition includes a useful publishing history for each of the fifty stories.
